

Focus of School Visits

Do your author visits focus more on Enlightening, Inspiring, or Entertaining the children?

Short answer: Yes.

Long answer: All of my school visits strive to do all three. Your school can emphasize one over the others through your choice of workshops for me to present. You can see a list of the workshops and presentations I offer at robertpottle.com. The descriptions will give you a sense of the focus of each.

I do offer free consultations to schools that arrange for me to visit. Though the numerous school author visits (see robertpottle.com) I have given over the years, I have gained many insights to what combinations of workshops work best.
